“ I worked for James and Mary at the store in the late 70s. They were wonderful mentors and I learned a lot about serving others from them. I can remember when one of the school organizations came by selling baked goods for a fundraiser. James bought a cake for 50$ and then turned around and gave the cake back to them to sell again.

“ I would second what Hank has said. James taught a high school Sunday School Class with the patience of Job. He treated each student as a very special person. His support of the Lindsay Schools showed his and Mary's belief in the future generations.
