“ Kelly... once more... I'm so sorry I broke your arm. Peggy forgave me. Scott, thanks for the Valentine's chocolates back in '67. I heard your mom and my mom talking about how cute it was... and Vicky was so proud of you. When my dad and I lost engine power on a short hop to PV, it was your mom who held my mom that night and your mom who answered our phone well after dark. When your dad died suddenly and my dad collapsed, grieving at his funeral, it was your mom who held him. When Vicky died, it was your mom who reassured my mom that life was still worthwhile. Yes... just 11 or 12 years of your mom, but... yes... what a warm, secure, passionate, compassionate woman was Peggy. Bless you guys.
